

Amanda Hartman

Amanda Hartman is currently an Education Specialist at the Public Health Accreditation Board (PHAB). The PHAB supports health departments in their work to promote the health of the communities they serve through Accreditation and Recognition, education, technical assistance, and research and evaluation. Amanda's primary role is to develop and provide resources to help health departments navigate the Accreditation process, such as live training, e-learning courses, and proactive technical assistance. Previous to Amanda's role at PHAB, Amanda was a Health Education Specialist at Atlantic Prevention Resources in Absecon, NJ.

