Galloway Township, NJ- The Richard E. Bjork Library of The Richard Stockton College of New Jersey is hosting a lecture on Atlantic County history on March 20, 2014 at 4:30 p.m. The event will be held in room F-118 on the college's main campus.

Jessica Keister, paper and photograph conservator for the Conservation Center for Art & History Artifacts in Philadelphia, will discuss her part in conserving an 1872 topographical map of Atlantic County. The map shows municipal boundaries, buildings, landholders' names, and property lots in Atlantic County, almost 100 years before the Stockton campus was established in Galloway. Two other speakers will also present on Atlantic County history.

Mark Demitroff, a Ph.D. student in the Department of Geology at the University of Delaware, Paul Schopp, former executive director of the Camden County Historical Society, and the West Jersey History Round Table donated the historical map to Stockton in 2013.

For more information on the event, contact Christy Goodnight at 609-626-5502.
