Galloway Township, NJ- Ron Quinn, a 1995 Richard Stockton College graduate, was selected to exhibit his photography in the New Jersey Artists Series at the Johnson and Johnson World Headquarters Gallery in New Brunswick, New Jersey. Ron's exhibit entitled "Communication: Symbols and Signs" will be on display from December 7, 2009 through January 15, 2010.

Ron's photography is an exploration on the means of human communication. Throughout his travels, Ron has captured objects and environments that affect how people communicate to one another. Almost like a catalogue, this ongoing series of black and white photographs is as comprehensive as it is revealing. Strikingly, the focus remains mostly on the objects in situ. The images thereby invite the viewer to evaluate what is and what can be communicated in an otherwise silent medium.

"What interests me most about the environments," says Quinn, "are the unique visible aspects or characteristics that I see before me. The way people choose to arrange objects, words, structures, or signs to communicate to others is extremely intriguing to me."

"Johnson & Johnson is pleased to exhibit Ron Quinn's work," said Ashley Atkins, Senior Arts Administrator at Johnson & Johnson. "We believe that the arts are crucial to a healthy community."

Ron Quinn received a B.A. in Photography and a B.A. in Education from The Richard Stockton College of New Jersey, and he worked at the College as an adjunct Professor of Photography. Ron currently teaches fourth grade at Texas Avenue Elementary School in Atlantic City. -more-
