Galloway Township, NJ – Educators and instructional technology specialists will exchange and expand their knowledge at TeachMeetNJ, an educational technology unconference, held at Stockton University's Campus Center on Thursday, Aug. 13, 2015.

TeachMeet NJ is free and intended for K-12 administrators, teachers, IT staff and anyone in education who has an interest in technology. "Unconference" is a term to describe conferences that are more participant-driven and informal than traditional conferences.

Fast-paced 20-minute sessions will be presented by area educators. Registration and breakfast begin at 7 a.m. with sessions beginning at 8:30 a.m. Attendees will be given a certificate for six hours of professional development upon completion of the full day, which ends at 3:30 p.m.

Attendees who would like to share how they use technology in the classroom can sign up to be a presenter at www.teachmeetnj.com.

Free Wi-Fi will be available and thousands of dollars in door prizes will be given out, including classroom response clickers, software and other technology tools. TeachMeetNJ is sponsored by Stockton's Masters of Arts in Instructional Technology program as well as companies such as Newsela, Microsoft, SchoolPointe and Curriculet.
