USDA Award

Congratulations PI Aaron Stoler with Co-PIs Judith Vogel, Jessica Favorito and Mariam Majd

Award Amount: $410,202.92

Stockton University will lead research and outreach programs to increase maple syrup production in New Jersey and the larger Mid-Atlantic region by use of novel technology, landowner engagement, and sustainable best management practices. The research efforts will focus on best management practices (BMPs) for sustainable maple syrup production, maximizing economic returns, and encouraging environmental stewardship. Outreach efforts will define BMPs for sustainable maple syrup production in New Jersey and the Mid-Atlantic at large, especially on the issues of sap volume, syrup quality, and ecological forest management with the goal of ascertaining the economic viability of maple syrup production regarding climate and seasonal variability. Outreach efforts will address land and technology access for current and potential producers delivered via workshops, demonstrations, and online content. The study results will be shared through maple conferences, agriculture and forestry conferences and meetings, peer-reviewed journal articles, and trade publications.

100,000 Strong in Americas Innovation Fund

Congratulations PI Mariana Smith

The U.S. Department of State, Partners of the Americas
Sponsored by Colombia's Department of Science, Technology, and Innovation (COLCIENCIAS) and the U.S. Department of State

The 100,000 Strong in the Americas Innovation Fund is the U.S. Department of State's signature education initiative in the Western Hemisphere region for leveraging commitments from public and private sectors, regional governments, and higher education networks to expand academic mobility, strengthen regional education cooperation, and enhance workforce development in the Americas.

The Innovation Fund inspires U.S. universities and colleges to team up with higher education institutions in Latin America to create partnerships to provide students with access to new exchange and training programs. Innovation Fund partnerships provide students with more opportunities to work in teams, gain skills, solve real-world problems, and become better prepared for today's workforce.
