THE STOCKTON EXHIBITION PROJECT

MONDAY, OCTOBER 30, 4 - 5:30 PM
CAMPUS CENTER THEATRE

Join us for a roundtable discussion about the goals of the Stockton Exhibition Project. Unfolding over the 2017-18 year, this work will explore the history of Stockton University, including how and why the state college was named for Richard Stockton (1730-1781), a New Jersey signer of the Declaration of Independence, in 1969. Our goals through this project, and its associated public programming, are to provide opportunities to engage in discussions about the study of history and the processes of memorialization and commemoration, as well as produce a well-documented, comprehensive study about our institution's past.
